ASK ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to say a word or two about that woman who signed herself "Screaming Mimi." She's the wife who was burned up because her husband who worked the midnight shift had the habit of saying to her, when he left the house to go to work, "Now go right to bed honey." Mimi wrote: "Where in the world WOULD I be going at that hour?"

I'm a husband who worked the midnight shift, too. I never told my wife to go straight to bed, but maybe that's where I made my big mistake. She found plenty of places to go at that hour—like every tavern and dance hall in town.

The worst part of it was that she left our kids, 9 and 6 years of age, alone in the apartment. It took me almost two years to catch up with her. When I did I really laid down the law.

So, Ann Landers, when a man leaves for the midnight shift and tells his wife to go straight to bed, why don't you stay out of it? Maybe he knows her better than you do.—MR. EXPERIENCE.

Dear Mr.: Thanks for the clue. I consider myself properly told off.

Dear Ann Landers: Several weeks ago our son was killed in an accident. Cal was 25 years old. He spoke often of a young woman I will call Marie. My husband and I had never met Marie or her people.

The day before the funeral Marie came to our home and told us that she and Cal had planned to be married at Christmas. She said her life was as good as over and she wished she had died with our son.

The poor girl fainted during the services and had to be carried out. My husband and I were having a difficult time keeping our composure and she did not make it any easier for us.

Every night after work Marie goes to the cemetery and puts a red rose on Cal's grave. She telephones me every evening and comes over about three times a week. She insists on helping me clean house, wants to cook and bake for the family, run errands. Anything to feel close to Cal, she says.

My husband and I are slowly recovering from our grief but this girl's presence a constant reminder of our grief and we'd prefer to see less of her. What is your advice?—MRS. B.

Dear Mrs. B.: Marie needs professional help. Urge her to get it. The girl's devotion to you is unhealthy.

Hanging around Cal's family helps feed the fantasy that he is still alive. It's not good for her or for you. When she gets the help she needs her doctor will insist she cut down her visits to your place, and the problem will be solved.

Dear Ann Landers: I read your column just to see what some people in this world consider "a problem." Honestly, with all the terrible things that are happening in the world, it's amazing how some idiot woman can write and ask what to do about a husband who puts ketchup on his mashed potatoes.

My old man used to empty bottles, too—but it wasn't ketchup he was hooked on. It was gin. My mother had to work to support the family and we were lucky if there was enough to eat. I'd give that lady ketchup all right... one tomato at a time.—SICK OF TWO-BIT WHINERS.

Dear Sick: Thanks for putting my thoughts into your words. What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits—the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Sex—Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Some watches cost too much or look too cheap to wear all the time.

This one doesn't.

This handsome watch costs just $10.95. And that's a decent price to pay for an everyday watch to wear messing around the yard. Or stalking a deer. Or fiddling with a motor. Yet it has all the essentials a basic well-made watch should have. Jewel-lever movement. Waterproof. Shock-resistant. Anti-magnetic. Plus a respectable face.

M.C. Napier vs Wheelwright, Saturday 8 p.m. In Wheelwright

Everything Go In Napier Camp; New Coaches To Make Debuts In E.K.M.C., Play

It may be 95 degrees outside and both major leagues maybe in the thick of tight pennant races but it's also time for high school football.

The popular local sport begins this weekend when the M. C. Napier Navajos, under new coach Charles Hall, journey to Wheelwright for the customary opener against the Trojans, who are playing under a new boss in Don Daniels.

Napier has been in heavy preparation for this one since the last week in July and from all indications in the training camp of the Redskins everything is go for Saturday night.

The big problem facing Hall, former assistant at Woodford County, is inexperience. The youthful head mentor has three returning regulars from a year ago but they are three dandies.

Jim McAlarnis, rated by his coach as "definite all-state material," heads a solid backfield for the Navajos.

JIM McALARNIS

Mac is a senior and does the 100 yard dash in less than 10 seconds.

Joining the team's co-captain in the backfield will be senior Bobby Parsons at quarterback, George Ballard, co-captain and senior, and freshmen Calvin Beatty at the other back slots.

The Napier line has good size but some inexperience. Junior tackle Ken Finnison and junior end Lige Miller head the forward wall. "Our spirit is real good and we'll be ready come Saturday," Hall said of his first taste of head coaching.

Napier lost to Wheelwright a year ago 6-0 in the opener at Napier Field as Trojan halfback Willie Watson intercepted a Napier aerial and turned it into the lone touchdown.

Watson heads the Wheelwright squad this season and is one of only two seniors on the roster.

LIGE MILLER

Coach Hall said of the schedule that his Navajos are facing this season, "It's a tough one but we are going to beat some people this year."

Napier won't be at home until a week from tomorrow night when the Leslie County Eagles, under new head man Wendell Adkins, come to town for a battle.

On the matter of the Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference this year Hall had this to say, "well we know Hazard will be tough and Jenkins will have a good ball club." The Napier Schedule for this year looks like this:

M. C. NAPIER "NAVAJOS" 1965 FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

Aug. 21	*Wheelwright	A
27	Leslie Co.	A
Sept. 3	*Jenkins	A
10	*Hazard	A
17	*Elkhorn City	A
24	*Whitesburg	A
Oct. 1	*Belfry	A
8	Open	A
15	Hazel Green	A
22	Prestonsburg	A
29	*Fleming-Neon	H

* Denotes Conference Game

NAPIER STARTING LINE-UP FOR SATURDAY NIGHT LOOKS LIKE THIS:

LEFT END: LIGE MILLER, Jr., 5'10", 170 lbs. Hall rates Miller as a good end that can go both ways.

CENTER: WAYNE KING, Jr., 5'10", 170 lbs. Real fine player when he makes up his mind to do so.

RIGHT GUARD: MIKE COMBS, Jr., 5' 10", 165 lbs. Needs some experience.

RIGHT END: DEWEY FINNISON, Fresh., 5' 10", 160 lbs. Real good for a freshmen.

QUARTERBACK: BOBBY PARSONS, Sr., 5'10" 170 lbs. "It's a shame that this boy is a senior because he is just coming in to his own," Hall says of his signal caller.

BACK: JIM McALARNIS, Sr., 5'0", 170 lbs. Mac is definite all-state according to his coaches.

BACK: CALVIN BEATTY, Fresh., 5'9", 160 lbs. Likes to hit people and loves to play football.

BACK: GEORGE BALLARD, Sr., 5'8", 150 lbs. Small, speedy, four year vet.

Meet The Navajos

The M. C. Napier Navajos, shown in thin ranks when this photo was made have grown by eight new performers since that time. Shown here in front, left to right are: Mike Combs, Kenny Ballard, Charles Bankston, John Pittard, Randy Hughes, Don Lunce, George Ballard, Calvin Beatty, and Bobby Parsons. Standing from left to right: Jeremiah Collins, Lige Miller, Jim McAlarnis, Briscoe Combs, Sam Greene, Kenneth Finniston, Dewey Finniston, Wayne King and Harold Dixon. Newcomers to the Navajo squad include Gary Childers, 230 lb. junior tackle, Charles Jones and Tommy Brock, heavy duty performers from last year, Eugene Ritchie, 200 lb. sophomore who was regular fullback last year will join the squad on Monday. Other new men are Clem Walker, J. B. Hughes, Will Vanover and Billy Cox.

E. K. M. C. Has Four New Coaches; Hall-Sizemore At Local Schools

By Arlis Fields

At least four new football coaches will field teams this fall in the Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference.

Two of those new mentors are at the two local football playing high schools.

Wheelwright High School has a new boss in Don Daniels who moved up from assistant when Ray Brackett resigned.

Elkhorn City, State Class A champions of a year ago, lost Jack Hall to Richmond Madison and Hall's assistant, William Duty took over the reigns at Elkhorn City.

Two of the new coaches will get their first taste of E.K.M.C. action on Saturday night when M. C. Napier takes on Wheelwright.

"We are going over there to win," Coach Hall said of his first venture as head coach.

Hall formerly was junior varsity coach at Woodford County High School in Versailles. The Woodford County JV's were undefeated while playing under Hall.

Sizemore is no stranger to the job at Hazard having served as an assistant for the past two seasons.

Hazard has a new assistant in Newt Green, former lineman for the canines. Fred Stidham, back for his second year, rounds out the Hazard grid staff.

Guy Olinger is back for his fifth year as assistant at M. C. Napier while head basketball coach Albert Combs is also helping out.

Stepping outside the E.K.M.C. we find that Leslie County will be playing under a new boss in Wendell Adkins who takes over for the departed Robert Igo.

Igo is now the head man at Lynn Camp High School near Corbin. Leslie County will be at Napier field in two weeks for a battle with the Navajos.

In another coaching change that is of interest to local fans, Ed Orick, former head man at M. C. Napier, has taken the head coaching job at Fern Creek High School in Louisville.

Orick was coach at Napier from 1957 through the 1961 season, doubling as basketball coach in 1960.

The Minnesota graduate has been at Fern Creek since 1963.

Unemployed Men Seek Work On Farm In Michigan

by Edith Feltner glad because they are doing a We have some men working good job. The new ones are Roy on our road and we are very Morris and Manuel Stamper Page 5 THE HAZARD HERALD, Thursday, August 19, 1965

THEM HONORY CRITTERS

Come on children and listen to me I'll tell you a tale as true as can be. There I was sittin' that day finding my business when it came my way. I heard the noise and saw the smoke. It scared me so I almost croaked. It whizzed by me like a ball of fire. And left me with my mouth ajar. What it was I could not see. Cause it sprouted wings as it went by me. I waited a minute thinking for shore it might pass me just once more. I looked down the road to see. And About that time it did pass me. All I saw was a little red dot— And I think a boy upon it sat— I asked a young feller standin' round Just what it was that made that sound. He looked at me sorta mad, Replying, "That's a motorcycle, Dad." Time went by and pretty soon The hospital had to make more room. Cause them honory critters bucked and snorted And left their drivers all distorted. There's a new wing - "The Motorcycle Ward" The patients there shore ain't bored. They're hanging in traction from head to toe In that cycle ward, row after row. Where they lay in all kinds of patches. Mustard plaster can't help them scratches. They say time flies and I reckon so. But here's one thing I would like to know. Will they ever sell cycles with assurance "Buy one now and get free insurance?" —Ida Lee Hansel

Determined Big Willard Man Develops Artistic Talent In Spite Of Polio

by Gurney Norman

Vaccines to prevent polio came into wide-spread use about 1954, but that was a little late for Lawrence Couch of Big Willard. He was stricken with the crippling disease in 1952 and he's been in a wheelchair ever since.

Polio claimed the use of both Lawrence's legs, and his arm—the one he used to depend upon the most—is suspended from a harness attached to his wheel chair.

In winter, he works in his wheelchair, inside his parent's neat house at the head of Big Willard, and out on the shady porch or in the yard in summer.

A weight holds down the paper on a board that rests before him on the arms of the wheelchair. His box of drawing pencils lies nearby. The photograph he is reproducing is propped on a table or lying on his drawing board.

With a small ruler, Lawrence first measures the features of his subject, and then, according to his own improvised scale, he makes the first tentative marks upon the paper.

The outline of a head takes two hours, the shaping of a nose or chin an hour and a half. Once the outline is down, and the prominent features etched in, the more subtle marks are made that round out the picture and make it come alive.

For a long time Lawrence reproduced only pictures of his relatives, and gave them away as presents, with no idea that his ability might have a larger meaning than that.

But early this summer, upon the recommendation of a social worker who visited and noticed his work, he was referred to the Appalachian Rehabilitation Project Center in Harlan for a series of aptitude tests.

The results indicated that Lawrence might very well be suited for training in draftsmanship or a related field. Now he is waiting to go to Cincinnati for several weeks of more elaborate testing at a larger rehabilitation center, to determine precisely what he can do with his hard-won talent.

Lawrence speaks hopefully of his possibilities. In talking to him, it is plain that he is immediately willing to pursue any professional challenge the experts recommend for him. Although his formal schooling stopped when he was hit by polio, he even talks of going on to college if he can find financial help.

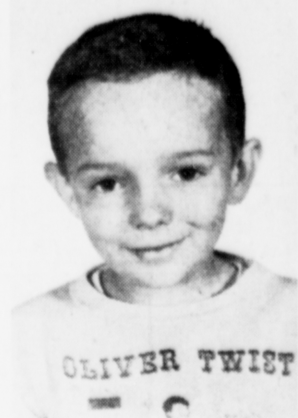

That is the striking thing about Lawrence Couch: sitting there in his wheel chair, there isn't the slightest hint of bitterness or defeat in this attitude, nor are there any false heroics. There is just a mature man of 27 who is polite and on the quiet side but unafraid to look you in the eye, a man who has faced death and crippling disease and found within himself the courage and integrity to fight back.

Lawrence is still in his wheelchair, but it has by no means triumphed over him. The talent he has discovered within himself, and painfully polished over the years, is not a mark of defeat. He has hopes and plans and ambitions in larger quantities than most people blessed with healthy bodies. He's eager to get on with his tests, to find out what they prove. It's hard to imagine they won't prove something in his favor, but even if somehow they didn't, Lawrence will still be in there trying.

It may be that he can reap more than the praise of friends and relatives for his pencil portraits. Shown the drawing of Mr. W. P. Nolan, printed elsewhere on this page, one Hazard business man instantly offered Lawrence $25 to do one for him.

Maybe others will be similarly inclined. An original drawing certainly is a delightful thing to own, and they sure would make fine Christmas presents.

Lawrence's address, perhaps symbolically, is Busy, Ky. The phone number is 436-5169.

Camera vs. Artist

From the two small photographs shown above, Lawrence drew the larger reproductions in pencil, free-hand. The boy, left, is his nephew, Elvis Smith. The other picture is of Herald publisher W. P. Nolan. Lawrence's drawing of Mr. Nolan is actually about 10 inches x 12 inches. It took 40 hours to complete.

But though his left wrist is a little stiff and the fingers are not always totally manageable, Lawrence was at least left with the use of his left hand. That hand, and the remarkable will-power that makes it function, is the subject of this story.

Until polio almost killed him when he was fourteen, Lawrence wasn't much different from the other kids at Big Willard Elementary School, up the creek a ways from Busy.

He walked the mile or so back and forth to school each day, and ran and played at recess as roughly as his friends. He was no more serious about life then than any other seventh grader. The possibility that he might one day be paralyzed by polio didn't occur to him any more than the possibility that he might have a bonafide talent for drawing.

But the unexpected has a way of happening. Polio has confined Lawrence to a wheelchair for the last thirteen years. In that time he has taught himself to draw with a true artist's ability.

It started as a hobby about six years ago. Other hobbies had helped him pass the long hours but it wasn't until he began fooling around with water colors that he found any real satisfaction in one. As time passed he worked with different materials and in other forms. He did a few pictures in oils, and on "paint by numbers" sets; he did original water colors as well as copies of other pictures.

But it was his pencil sketches of photographs of people that drew exclamations of amazement from his relatives. The drawings were uncanny in their accuracy. In almost every case, Lawrence's pencil version of a picture had more life and character about it than the original photograph did.

There is no gimmick behind what Lawrence can do with a pencil and paper, and a photograph to go-by. He is not a quick-sketch artist. He doesn't do one-minute charcoal caricatures. His drawings take up to forty hours to complete. A whole week's hard work goes into a single portrait.

He works in the patient manner of all conscious craftsmen. All his moves and strokes are carefully considered. With only one hand to work with, there is no room for wasted motion.

Former Booneville Man Is Hobbyist

What is the capital of Oregon and what is on the capital's dome?
You don't know? Neither does a half-million other Americans unless they are like the U. S. naval aviator Lt. Cmdr. Glenn A. Wilson of Booneville, Ky.

One of Wilson's many hobbies is photography state capitals. At times these hobbies come in handy.

"One night while serving aboard the seaplane tender US S Currituck, several officers of the ship and myself were involved in a question-answer game on historical subjects," recalls Wilson. "One question the moderator asked was, 'what is the capital of Oregon and what is on top of the dome?' Slowly I rose to my feet and told him the capital is Salem and on top of the dome is a figure of a lumberjack with a single-bitted ax in his right hand and a deer over the left shoulder."

"The moderator, a native of Salem, was last seen trying to bring his lower jaw back on an even keel," laughed Wilson. "I never did tell him that my photo collection of state capitals was solid black, no strips! I included almost every state in foot on its head and BANG I got sprayed in both eyes. I was blinded for two hours."

Although his skunk trapping days are over, he still collects the ceramic type.

Lt. Cmdr. Wilson is presently serving as Transportation Officer for Air on the staff of Commander U. S. Naval Forces, Japan, in Yokosuka, where he directs air transportation for Navy and Marine Corps personnel traveling from Yokosuka to other military activities throughout the world.

Wilson was designated a naval aviator in 1943 after graduating from NROTC at Berea College, Berea, Ky.

In honor of his being the only person from Owsley County, Ky., to become a naval aviator, the Governor of Kentucky, in 1962, bestowed the title of "Kentucky Colonel" on Wilson.

Over the past 23 years he has flown almost every type of Navy seaplane including the PBV "Catalina," PBM "Mariner," and P5M "Marlin." In all his flying Wilson has yet to damage an aircraft.

He also holds the P5M seaplane endurance record of 25.3 hours which he helped set while serving at the Naval Air Station, Whidbey Island, Wash.

As a native of the Blue Grass State, Wilson also has a collection of Kentucky Derby favorites.

Among his collection is a sketch of "Man-O-War," the most famous horse to ever live. "Man-O-War was 34-years-old when he died. This is comparable to a human being living for 125 years," Wilson noted.

A frequent visitor to Booneville, Wilson still claims to be a red-blooded mountaineer.

"A mountaineer," Wilson jokes, "is a man who can't understand why the government can legally make whisky and he can't."

Of his many hobbies, the naval officer reports that to "enjoy

Joe Eversole III Entertains Club

J. F. Brophy was program chairman and Joe Eversole III, talented musician and dancer, was guest entertainer at the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Club at Don's Restaurant Tuesday evening, August. (He is 12 years of age and enters the 7th grade this year.)

Joe III rendered four popular piano numbers and a tap dance. Following were the instrumental numbers: (1) Alley Cat, (2) Java, (3) Cotton Candy, (4) Last Date. He closed with the tap dance to the accompaniment of his record player, followed by long and repeated applause.

Visitors were Jack Picklesimer of Pikeville, Ky., civil and electrical engineer, and Frank Baker, of Louisville, former vice-president of Hazard Kiwanis Club.

A short make-up meeting at Don's followed, with a regular meeting of directors at George Pendleton's office at Hazard Credit Bureau.

Welfare's Contradictions

Public programs set up to combat social ills are almost always well-intentioned, at their inception. But by the time they are put into practice, so many of them operate at cross-purposes that different programs work against each other and cancel out what ever limited value they might have had if bureaucracy had not been in the way.

The whole theme of the anti-poverty program is to encourage poor people to help themselves, to revive their hopes and ambitions and personal initiative, and to provide them with opportunities for lifting themselves up by their own bootstraps.

Thousands of dollars are spent to hire trained people to go into the slums and creeks and hollows to teach the people how to do this. This is fine. It is an ambitious thing for any government to do, and even if it is only partly successful, at least that much will have been accomplished.

But then, while these hard-working community organizers are trying to lead poor people into a new self-reliance, we have going at the same time various other public projects that teach people just the opposite of self-reliance.

Anyone receiving any kind of welfare check or who is on the unemployed fathers program will understand this immediately. For the central awareness most of these people have with respect to the welfare system is that someone in authority is always watching them, waiting for them to take an independent action toward earning money, so they can be punished by being cut off the welfare.

If an unemployed father gets a chance to work on Saturday afternoon for his neighbor, he must either do it in secret, lie about it later, or else report his earnings to the welfare office so that his monthly check can be reduced accordingly.

Small wonder you can't get anybody to mow your lawn any more. The work force lives in constant terror of its supposed benefactor!

This is a sick situation, one that must be cured. It is not the fault of the local welfare administrators. They follow rules and regulations. It is a fatal flaw inherent in the big welfare programs as we have known them.

It is traceable to a failure of imagination on the part of the government. It is traceable to the rigid, inflexible attitudes characteristic of all bureaucracy.

What is needed is a single approach that provides incentive for self-improvement at the same time that it sustains life in poor people.

But it is doubtful that this approach will ever be used. It is too original for politicians to consider. The prospect seems to be what we have all along feared: efforts to help fight poverty are in many cases only breeding more of it, permanently.

Complaints Against City

Hazard Herald

Hazard, Kentucky

Dear Editor:

The drooping characteristics of the coal mining industry here have not kept the hub city (Hazard) in the beautiful Kentucky mountains along with the declining situation of coal mining here. The city is much improved now over that of the boom days of the 1920's.

Our citizens are a part of the above growth and know it, but often we are wandering in our decisions regarding local decisions affecting our citizens.

Truck parking is allowed on traffic lane, with driver absent, creating a slow down in traffic movement. If a motorist leaves his passenger car parked in a traffic lane where traffic is affected, a violation ticket is issued.

If a citizen's garbage is burned in an incinerator, thus destroying all germs, and fails to pay $1.00 for garbage service not received nor needed his city water service is cut off, meter removed and $1.50 added to replace meter and another 10% added for failure to pay for service (garbage) not needed.

The Hazard Herald January 14th 1965 carried this in a letter on the editorial page "There is an opening to the storm sewer near the fire plug at the First Baptist church which has been left open for many months. A very bad place for ankle or leg injury." Regardless of this safety need $741.21 in 1964 was spent for keys.

A burning garbage dump can be seen near dwellings on Peter's Peak.

After reading of our characteristics and observing our city conditions, one can quote Walter Cronkite "And that's how it is".

Yours very truly,
P. L. Johnson

Problems Everywhere!

Letter To The Editor

Hazard Herald,

Hazard, Ky.

I understand that certain people have been sent here to help us understand each other. I believe that they are in earnest and in good faith and I am not criticizing them; but from all reports we get over News Broad-casts and from the Press, it seems that the people in New York and Chicago need this help far more than we do. We do not have riots here, and we have not gotten to the point where mobs can assemble and get all their imaginary wrongs righted.

Agree Or Not

I Say What I Think

by E. G. VAN CUBEN

Setting a new tax rate—whether it be a fixed figure or a percentage increase— isn't that simple for the special session of the General Assembly convening here August 23 to deal with the situation created by the Court of Appeals decision requiring 100 per cent assessment on property for tax purposes.

The Minimum Foundation Program laws, enacted to best of educators in 1954 and energized with funds by the 1966 session of the General Assembly, must be rewritten, for the present law says local boards must assess a minimum rate of $1.10 per $100 of valuation to qualify for state school aid funds.

Since property has been assessed traditionally in Kentucky at one third of its fair market value, and now must go at 100 per cent in 1966 on edict of the Court, the $1.10 statutory rate would more than double present local income for all school districts.

Gov. Edward T. Breathitt has been holding luncheon meetings with legislators to brief them on problems of taxes and to get their ideas on what must be done in the special session.

Two ideas have sprung from these meetings—set a fixed maximum rate of 50 cents or so per $100 valuation to scale the tax bill to about its present level, or establish a percentage increase over present school tax revenue that cannot be exceeded.

Professional educator want no tampering with the present $1.50 ceiling and 25 cent floor, while the Farm Bureau, one of Kentucky's strongest lobbies, has come out with a program that would do away with some property taxes and set a ceiling of 50 cents.

The Farm Bureau favors increasing the sales tax to meet the education bill or permit localities to levy an occupation tax. The Farm Bureau also wants to reduce the present ceiling of 50 cents levied by Fiscal Courts for county government operation to 20 cents, and to reduce the rate on livestock, poultry and machinery to .001 from the present 50 cents.

The Court followed Kentucky's Constitution to the letter in establishing the 100 per cent ruling. Penalties also are established for local taxing authorities if they fail to live up to the rule.

This is viewed by authorities of government and taxation as the most conscientious effort made in recent years to arrive at assessment equalization.

Kentucky's old system of one-third valuation has made generic liars out of property owners when they sign the affidavit at the bottom of their assessment sheets. Property assessment has been nothing but a guessing contest—pitting the wits of the property owner against that of the assessor and board of equalization.

The Court's ruling changes all of this—and that's the 'why' of the special session.

Kentucky's Constitution requires that property taxes be assessed, but the rate for the state general fund is only 5 cents per $100 valuation. This rate can be changed.

School leaders fear establishing a new maximum rate of 50 to 60 cents, for they say this would put them in the same problem boat they now occupy and would set them back 15 years.

House Majority Leader Mitchel Denham of Maysville supports property assessment as the basis of taxation while other schools of thought favor increasing the sales tax or an occupational tax.

The entire philosophy of taxation may be changed within the next decade, but don't look for it to happen in the special session.

Personal Opinion

"The Lotts Creek Bridge," by James Bailey, Hazard, Ky.

Mr. C. R. Dorsey
District Engineer State Highway
Jackson, Ky.

I am writing to you asking again for your approval for a new bridge at the mouth of Lotts Creek on Kentucky 15. When you reported to Mr. Ward that after the new 15 was built a new bridge would not be needed, I think you had not looked the situation over carefully. I wish after school starts next week that you would send someone up here to view the situation more carefully.

Last Thursday night the County School Board voted 100% to back this project, last night the Perry County Development Association voted 100% to back this project, the Hazard Kiwanis Club had voted to back the project and numerous well known citizens have expressed their desire for relief of the traffic congestion at this place. As you stated to Mr. Ward, the new Kentucky 15 will have no relief for the congestion at this bridge. If anything, traffic will be heavier on this road after the new 15 is completed because we will have more visitors in the area.

Aside from the traffic congestion, the most important thing about this bridge is the great danger to school buses that have to cross this bridge on the way to M. C. Napier High School. When a bus leaves the east end of the bridge, the side of the bus is exposed to any oncoming traffic and if it should happen to be a large truck, and there are many coal trucks plying this route, the brakes could fail and cause the truck to smash into the side of the school bus which would probably be loaded with from 75 to 100 children. Now, I ask you would you like to see a thing like that happen? I don't think you would.

Another thing, there are 25 small businesses on the section of road between the Walkertown bridge and the bridge at the mouth of Lotts Creek. These businesses nearly all depend on highway traffic for their business. They also employ more than 100 people besides the owners. Now, I ask you isn't this an important thing to the economy of Hazard. I have a payroll now of about $60,000.00 a year and stand a chance of employing still more in the future as I have just spent $30,000.00 building a new recapping shop.

If the State cannot afford to replace the present bridge, I think the State could afford to build a one way bridge from Ky. 80 over to the school and on out to Ky. 15 then use one bridge for traffic going one way and the other bridge for the other direction. If this were done, it would be an awfully lot better than the present bridge.

The State spent $2,500,000.00 building a mile of road and this mile of road now has about one tenth the traffic that Ky. 15 has. And, furthermore, this road hasn't helped but one or two businesses. Also, after the new 15 is completed the only traffic it will take away from the present 15, provided we can get some of the bottlenecks eliminated, will be those going out of town to Lexington or that direction and toward the west on highway 80 and some of the traffic going toward Buckhorn.

Most of the traffic coming into Hazard from the east, Hindman and beyond, Troublesome Section, Lotts Creek Section, 2nd Creek Section, Hardburly and even the Appalachian Hospital and people desiring to go from Hazard to the new Ky. 15 via the Hazard district would use this road provided we can get a bridge built and some of the bottlenecks eliminated. The federal government is just dying to help the people in Eastern Kentucky yet the very things we need most are being overlooked or bypassed. Why?

Well, Mr. Dorsey I do hope you will give us some special consideration on this bridge business. You surely could help a lot of people and maybe save a lot of children's lives by seeing to it.

After school starts, I want to have some pictures made and get the papers to print them so you can see for yourself if you do not have the time to come up here. Also State Senator Engle has promised me to ask Mr. Ward for some of his time to talk to us in Frankfort about this bridge.

Personal Opinion

"The Blackey Story," by Larry Caudill, Blackey, Ky.

Evidence accumulates around Blackey that mountain communities which in the depressed aura of the last decade were allowed to drift into a state of innocuous desuetude almost to the ghost-town stage can be revived.

It is a not-at-all simple matter of giving the remnant population some motivation, then showing them that things can be made better with a modicum of effort.

It took massive legislation by the federal congress to sprout such simple grass-roots ideas as hooking rugs or carving out plain picture frames or bee hives.

The Economic Opportunity Act repeatedly stressed the congressional idea that the implementation of recovery projects might be of infinite variety but must come from the people themselves, who need and want them.

An important part of the Opportunity was meant, apparently, to center in community action programs.

If any great success is achieved by the Anti-Poverty Act it fittingly can be another memorial to John Fitzgerald Kennedy, for it was he who started it all—and he was moved by that primary means of human communication, the newspaper.

One morning in October of 1963 his morning newspaper brought to John Kennedy a comprehensive, incisive, intelligent report on Eastern Kentucky—a forecast of another hard winter of deprivation and isolation for us mountaineers.

Kennedy knew something first hand of the conditions, as he read the story.

He called in high officials of many departments of federal government and told them in effect—"Do something for Eastern Kentucky—before winter."

A few efforts were launched, but they were feeble and largely futile.

Came the tragic events of November, 1963.

After the assassination, the efforts to help Eastern Kentucky were allowed to drift into the foot-dragging bogs of bureaucracy.

But Congressman Carl Perkins and Senator John Cooper and a few others kept plugging at the vast and complex task.

Meantime in the community of Blackey a few people began to feel and say that something possibly might be done in line with Kennedy's ideas. They included a few schoolteachers, a retired nurse, a doctor's wife, a couple of merchants, a highway employee, the doctor, a retired newspaperman, and a housewife or so.

They set up a skeleton organization, designated each other to look into the various needs of the community and the possible cures for various ills.

The Blackey Improvement Committee was incorporated as an activating agent for the program.

The local committee had the assistance of experts: George Woodring of the OEO regional office in Washington; Joe Smith of the state OEO office in Frankfort; Larry Greathouse of the Council of the Southern Mountains at Berea, and Bill Miller of the Kellogg Foundation-University of Kentucky's Eastern Kentucky Resources Development Project at Quicksand. At a mass meeting of the area's residents they heard the variety of ideas of possible projects for the pilot program.

The local committee, with Verlon Shepherd as chairman, centered on construction of a community center as a focal point of interest and operating center for other projects. The long-disused George Matt Hogg store building was purchased from Wayne Dixon.

Renovation of the building was begun for use as a recreation center, a health clinic, a meeting place, an educational facility, etc. Meanwhile funds were raised by "passing the hat," by potluck supper, by fish fry, by bazaar, etc., to make the $100-a-month payments on the building.

Applications were drafted for projects to meet the needs of under-16 teen-agers and the high imbalance of elderly in the population, centering on the now-famous "Blackey's 34 widows;" craft school to train householders to repair their decrepit homes; woodworking groups to turn out picture frames, bee hives, screen doors, etc.

Heart-rending tragedy turned attention to other facets of the community's shortcomings. Twin brothers drowned on their 16th birthday in the Kentucky River at the mouth of Rockhouse Creek. There was the shocking realization that we rear our children to that age—and they can't swim.

A swimming pool for the Blackey area became immediately a part of the pilot project. Negotiations were begun with the Farmers Home Administration of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, through County Supervisor Charles Gibson, at Hazard, for technical advice and financing. Meanwhile the idea arising from the double tragedy attracted the attention of Congressman Carl Perkins. In a personal letter to Sargent Shriver, head of the Office of Economic Opportunity, Carl asked the director's personal attention to the swimming pool project. And in the satisfying way in which news of such human interests gets around, there came an offer of bath towels from Janet Brooks of The Wooden Horse specialty shop of far-off Mount Vernon, Iowa.

In effort to reach and interest the residents of other communities in the project, the Blackey group began to hold meetings in other areas. A pleasing representation of neighbors attended the July meeting at Campbells Branch School for the convenience of residents of the Line Fork and Ulva communities. Willie Watts, high school teacher, of Line Fork, was elected vice-chairman of the committee.

The committee voted to meet Friday, August 6, at 7 p.m. at the Kingdom Come School, when a resident of that area will be elected to the board of directors of the committee.

The idea is to involve the people from all areas of the project boundary.

The women's committee of the group held a bazaar and bake sale and the yield for the community center fund was surprisingly good.

The community action program will be given a celebratory boost on the Labor Day weekend with a Homecoming Festival on Saturday, September 4. The program will feature home-talent mountain music. The candidates for various county political offices will gather for a rally to launch the fall campaign.

Friends and relatives who have left the mountains in recent years have been invited to plan their summer trips "back home" at that time.

Two public entertainment programs are being planned for the day, one in the morning and one at night. A featured speaker is being sought.

"We need a combination Fess Whitaker and William Jennings Bryan," said Bill Caudill, chairman of the festival committee.

"And any mountain families who are looking for a propitious time and place for a family reunion are invited to come to Blackey that day."

"The fish fry late in the day would be a fine time for a family get-together."

Governors Or Rulers?

The federal government is working hard to build an image of benevolence and concern for the man in the street.

But the methods of operation of some of its agencies undermine these efforts and often make the government look like just the opposite of the citizen's benevolent friend.

The Internal Revenue Service is the latest example. IRS's use of illegal methods to collect taxes has been the subject of a good deal of nationwide publicity in recent weeks. Wire-tapping, breaking into people's houses, use of infra-red seeing devices to spy upon the private lives of individuals are but a few of the devious means employed by IRS to go about its work.

On the local level, the practices are not as much sinister as they are down right rude.

One Hazard business owed a tax bill of a few hundred dollars. The bill was overdue by a few days. The business sent a letter of explanation for the delay to the local IRS agent but IRS ignored it and went straight to the bank and levied the business' account to meet the debt.

All of this without a single visit to the businessman, without a personal conversation, without the least gesture of sympathetic respect. Other branches and agencies of the government operate in similar, devious ways. Mail is looked into and in some cases stopped all together. Arrested persons are often treated as if they were guilty, even before they have had a trial. Some special agencies of government investigate the opinions of American citizens. Others subject prospective employees to lie-detector tests on the apparent assumption that most Americans lie, or have criminal backgrounds they wish to hide.

Obviously, some parts of government require strict security measures, and the backgrounds of employees is relevant to their government jobs.

But the government often exposes itself to a worse danger than an occasional undesirable in a federal post. This is the danger of alienating the "American people," of making the people suspicious and distrustful of the motives behind big government's actions.

The federal government, and, indeed, state and local governments as well, must always remember the difference between the ruler who rules and he who governs. We don't have rulers in this country.

Anytime some government functionary begins to act like one, he needs cut down a notch or two.

Personal Opinion

"Defending What Is Ours," by Eldon Davidson, Hazard, Ky.

We who own property here in eastern Kentucky read with alarm the news that permission has been granted for five new striping operations to be activated on these precipitous slopes.

As a co-chairman of the Appalachian Group to Save Land and People I'm sure I express the view of the organization when I say we do not recognize any mountain slope in eastern Kentucky as being able to withstand the ravages brought about by strip mine operations.

It is becoming alarmingly clear that the term conservation like Bible reading in the public schools is a stumbling block no longer to be tolerated by those few who are so recklessly shaping the destiny of our state and nation.

Although our governor has taken a strong and lonely stand against this destruction the voices of Minor Clark and J. O. Matlick remain strangely silent. As a matter of fact there were three widely read wildlife and conservation publications printed in the state this month which made no mention of the destruction now being heaped upon wildlife in the area and upon nature in general.

Mr. Fantus says information about eastern Kentucky is outdated and misleading. Let me be the first to say that information about strip mining in eastern Kentucky is outdated.

Julian Feiss stated June 23rd that the National Strip Mine Study now under way have to rely largely on information already gathered. He stated that since there were only two years left in which to complete the study there would not be sufficient time to go into the field for up to date information.

This then, Mr. Fantus, is what's wrong with east Kentucky. Our future too long has been determined by inept state and federal employees who go about their work in a dreamy and lackadaisical manner. Bored down by red tape and political patronage they speak of years when days would be enough to gather irrefutable proof of the need to outlaw stripmining as a method of obtaining mountain coal. These employees do not know the meaning of walking up to a problem and taking it by the throat.

Rather they prefer long distance skirmishes fought out on reams and reams of paper.

I note they propose to reduce the bench width to 150 ft. which will have about the same effect as reducing the amount of damage done by a flood by dipping out a gallon of the water. There is no tolerable bench width for striping coal in east Kentucky.

It is interesting to hear the cry of the parks commissioner. He is worried about the tourist seeing something ugly. Its alright if they bury us who own the land but we must be careful not to let the tourist see it lest it depress him. Mr. Bell may I say that we love beauty too. We love the mountains and we approve of the way God made them. We love to see them poking their stately heads above the fog on a sunny morning and we also like to retreat into their timber covered slopes. Most of all we own them, pay taxes on them, keep fires out of them, set new trees on them and we demand the right to defend what is ours without being threatened and intimidated by our law enforcement officials.

Mr. Edward Johnson of the U. S. Forest Service, Columbus, Ohio stated there are at present 50 studies underway seeking ways to reclaim the land. He even stated that on one site they had built nest boxes for birds whose natural nesting site had been disturbed by the operation of a strip mine. Yes Mr. Johnson spoke with the pride of a boy scout when he told of the bird boxes but you know that in not one of his 50 studies had he done anything about relocating the people whose homes have been destroyed and whose farm land has been covered by acid waste from strip mine operations.

Today I read that Mr. Matlick is still planning to require these operators to strip the slope of vegetation and timber before starting the operation so that this timber and vegetation might be located at the bottom of the slope to catch the overburden. Mr. Matlick I still wish you would answer a question raised by me at the symposium. (Whose timber do you propose to use in making this silt dam at the foot of the slope?)

BELL COUNTY SCHOOL BOARD MEETS

By AMANDA SLUSHER

Last night, August 18, the Bell County School Board met for its regular monthly meeting.

Many business items were taken up and fully discussed. The minutes of the last meeting were read and all bills owed by the board were paid.

A major topic of discussion was the Vocational School that Bell County is supposed to get. It is to be located on the Bell County High School campus where the ball diamond is located now.

The new building is to cost $300,500.00 which will partly come under the Appalachia Bill and the rest from other sources.

The school board meets regularly every month.

VA Questions

Q—What is the final deadline for World War II veterans desiring a GI home loan?

A—Eligibility is ending each day for individual veterans according to a formula which adds ten years to the date of a veteran's discharge from active wartime service and then adds an additional year for each three months of such service. Final deadline date is July 25, 1967, for World War II veterans.

Q—Have any educational provisions been passed for so-called "Cold War" veterans?

A—Several such bills have been under consideration in Congress but as yet none have been passed.

Q—If a veteran who holds $10,000 worth of "J" insurance, purchased June 1, 1965, either volunteers or is called back to active duty for an indefinite period, is the insurance contract cancelled?

A—No, the insurance contract remains in force.

Q—I dropped my GI insurance right after getting out of service in 1945. Why can't I obtain insurance under the new law without having to prove that I either have a service-connected disability or am not able to obtain commercial insurance because of disabilities not due to service?

A—The present reopening of National Service Life Insurance is limited. The legislation enacted by Congress specifically limited the purchase of new insurance to those two categories.

Q—I have heard of a number of states which authorized a state bonus for veterans. Why hasn't the Veterans Administration in Wisconsin authorized such a payment?

A—The payment of a state bonus is authorized by the individual states, and not by the Veterans Administration. It is up to each state to determine whether they will authorize a state bonus for their veterans.

Q—I am a World War I veteran and am receiving pension and aid and attendance benefits under the old law in the monthly amount of $135.45. Would I be entitled therefore to medicine and drugs at VA expense?

A—No. You would be entitled to medicine and drugs at

And Answers

VA expense only if you were receiving aid and attendance benefits under the new pension law. You, of course, have the right to elect under the new law.

Q—Have any educational provisions been passed for so-called "Cold War" veterans?

A—Several such bills have been under consideration in Congress but as yet none have been passed.

Perry County people should read their County Paper.

Summertime Youth Revival Planned

A summertime youth revival is scheduled to commence August 22 at the Maple Street Church of God. The youthful evangelist who is slated to lead the crusade is from Birmingham, Alabama, and is from a family of preachers. He is Roger Woodard who is considered full of pulpit action and interesting whose message will appeal definitely to both young and adults.

He returns to school this fall following this one week revival soul winning effort here. He is also from a well talented musical family.

The pastor of the Maple Street Church, J. C. Dudley, urges everyone to attend this full gospel week of revival each evening at 7:00 p.m. All churches and the public invited and welcomed.

There will be special singing groups and solos featured during the week.

"I feel sure the sermons will greatly interest you and certainly the manifestation of the Holy Spirit each service" states Rev. Dudley. Sunday services are at 10:00 A.M., 11:00 A.M., and 7:00 pm climaxing the meeting August 29th in the evening.

TAKE YOUR FAMILY TO CHURCH THIS SUNDAY

HAPPINESS

Happiness is like a crystal,
Fair and exquisite and clear,
Broken in a million pieces,
Shattered, scattered far and near.
Now and then along life's pathway,
Lo! some shining fragments fall;
But there are so many pieces
No one ever finds them all.

You may find a bit of beauty,
Or an honest share of wealth,
While another just beside you
Gathers honor, love or health.
Vain to choose or grasp unduly,
Broken is the perfect ball;
And there are so many pieces
No one ever finds them all.

Yet the wise as on they journey
Treasure every fragment clear,
Fit them as they may together,
Imaging the shattered sphere,
Learning ever to be thankful,
Though their share of it is small;
For it has so many pieces
No one ever finds them all.

From many reports I have received on the opening day of Squirrel Season, it didn't come in with too much of a BANG as so many expected. All of you old time hunters didn't grumble about it, because you knew the weather was not in your favor. It has been so hot and humid with the temperature in the 90's. Many of you just went for the pleasure of the chance to be in the out doors. From reports you saw the bushy tails but was so dry you couldn't get up with them. James Hamilton stated that he didn't he had ever seen it so dry in the woods. From most reports I believe that this will be one of the best seasons in many years. Of course we know that Mother Nature takes care of a lot of things. Until we get a rain boys don't expect too much.

TIME IS MOVING ON

Which personally I think will be a better Eastern Ky. The Youth Corp program looks awful good to me, with so many of our younger people getting the training that they have so long needed. Under the entire Appalachian Program I can't see any thing other than progress if it is used in the right way. What is going to make it click to me is the local people stay behind the program, and to come up with sound suggestions, and to stay behind a program that is beneficial too all. Folks, it is up to you locally to get on the ball. Get hold of your own boot straps and start pulling, the harder you pull the more we will receive from this program. Above all let's see that these programs are worth the price. Lets not run around with our hands out to see what personal benefits that can come to me personally. Lets all work for the betterment of all. When we do this I would say that we have really accomplished a great deed. Lets move forward with the help that has been offered to us, but lets do it in a wise manner. That is the way it was intended for. If you do it this way you will be rewarded more time than you had hoped for. It won't be easy, it takes some effort on all to accomplish the most of every thing. WON'T YOU LEND A LITTLE TIME AND EFFORT

TO SUPPORT THE CAUSE OF MAKING EASTERN KY. THE PART OF OUR COMMONWEALTH AS IT SHOULD BE.

LET'S BE CAREFUL

During this hunting season of fire, don't let the hunter get the blame for setting forest fires. In my thinking the true hunter will do all he can to prevent forest fires. Let's all be a little more cautious during this hot and dry spell. Boys just be patient and lets wait for a soaking rain. You have a longer season this year, so don't fret about it just help the little woman around the house with these chores, such as canning a few beans, processing a few vegetables for the deep freeze, drying a few shucky beans and etc. They will taste mighty good when the snows come this winter.

ANOTHER THING

Fellows while on your hunting trips this fall, let me suggest that you stop and have a chat with the people that owns the property you are hunting on, you will find that they will appreciate you a lot more if you do this. Many of them are beyond the age of hunting, why not drop by and give them a squirrel or two. You will find that this will improve your chances of another trip. Not only for your pleasure but you will be helping some one else enjoy having you come back. These people like to have good people come to see them. This is not only in hunting or fishing, but in every day life. Few days ago I had the chance to call on two old friends, Yes Neighbors that I had grown up under as a boy, SALLY BELLE SMITH, Age 83, her sister MOLLE MORGAN age 86. Carl Creech has been visiting with his mother Sally Belle, and believe me she was glad to have him, about that time Mollie spoke up and said times haven't changed too much it is the darned people, Sally Belle agreed to this. Which I think they are right. It is not the times but the people are changing the times, I really enjoyed this visit with the two old timers that could tell you a lot about the history of the mountains.

Hyden Chevrolet Manager Wins Top Sales Honors

Hayes Frederick Lewis, manager of Lewis Chevrolet Company in Hyden goes into his second year as manager of the company to win top honors for his firm, only achieved by two others in the Louisville zone which takes in parts of four states.

The Lewis Chevrolet company was the winner in the top sales of new and used cars and trucks.

Freddie was competing with some of the largest dealers in the country and with people who have been in the automobile business for over 50 years.

He says that winning the contest was due to hard work and excellent help given to him by his employees and the confidence placed in him by his customers.

He also states that he has met, gotten acquainted with and made friends with a great number of wonderful people since he took over the dealership in May, 1964. He thinks he might have sold a few more cars if he had not have had to take time to receive his college diploma from Eastern in June, 1965.

He holds a bachelor of science degree, he also holds another honor in being one of the first teachers in Leslie County to teach an adult education class.

His class was made up of 30 students that had dropped out of school before finishing the grades.

He wishes to thank all of the people who came to Lewis Chevrolet and traded automobiles with him to make it possible for a dealer in a little town to win such an honor.

Clemons Drowns In Buckhorn Lake Sat.

A Perry County Coal Operator is the fourth drowning victim in Buckhorn Lake. Calvin Clemons, 37, of Airport Gardens drowned Saturday night while working on a boat.

According to Perry County Coroner Ken Terry the accident happened this way: Clemons and Hazard High School Football Coach Jack Carey had been working on a boat motor all afternoon and had the motor started and were trying it out when the engine failed about 125-150 feet from shore.

According to Terry, Clemons informed his companion that he was going to swim to the boat dock, which was directly across the lake from the stalled boat and get someone to tow the craft back to the dock.

Clemons dived into the water but came back up calling, "Lord, help me I'm drowning."

Carey then jumped into the water in an attempt to save Clemons but could not reach him before he went down in some 30 feet of water.

A search was underway immediately for the body with rescue squads from Breathitt County, Harlan County, Perry County, Floyd County and Middlesboro taking part in the search.

The actual drowning took place at 8:45 p.m. the body was pulled from the lake by the Middlesboro Rescue Squad at 4:10 a.m. yesterday morning.

A coroner's jury, impaneled at the scene, ruled the cause of death as accidental drowning.

Clemons is survived by his wife Alma; one daughter, Rebecca Bell; two sons, Calvin Crawford Clemons and Michael Dean Fugate.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. London Clemons of Bonnyman; four brothers, Ishmael, Roscoe, Ed and Hilt; and two sisters, Mrs. Loretta Noble and Mrs. Rerie Adams also survive.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 p. m. at the First Creek Baptist Church with the Reverends William Nichols and Ernest Lanham officiating.

Burial will be in the River-

First Baptist To Begin Kindergarten

The Community Church Kindergarten will begin Tuesday, September 7, at 9:00 a. m., at the First Baptist Church with Mrs. Ralph Bartlett, Director.

The teachers will be Mrs. Miller Cornett and Mrs. Douglas Combs, with Mrs. Lester Baker furnishing the transportation.

Kiwanis Club To Treat Hazard City Teachers

The Kiwanis Club is sponsoring a picnic for the new Hazard High School teachers Tuesday, August 24, at the Bobby Davis Park.

Tabulation Shows Greater Local Business Ventures

The spirit of individual enterprise and adventure shines bright in Perry County, judging from the number of local residents who have taken the financial plunge and gone into business for themselves.

Each year, an additional number of local men and women, with the urge to be on their own, embark on new ventures. Some succeed and some don't. The morality is high.

According to the latest Government tabulations, there are 824 local residents who make their living from their own businesses or professions.

They are the storekeepers, the doctors, the farmers, the barbers, the electricians, the gas station owners and the others who are self-employed.

They do not have such problems as getting and holding a job. For them there are different problems — rent, supplies, labor costs, sales volume, competition and net earnings.

The facts and figures on the number of business concerns in each section of the country, as well as the birth rate and the death rate among new firms are given in Department of Labor and Department of Commerce statistics.

They show that 12.1 percent of Perry County's working population is self-employed.

This compares favorably with the ratio in many areas of the country.

Of the 824 in Perry County who are their own bosses, 331 operate retail stores and 103 have service businesses. The others are farmers, professional people, wholesalers and manufacturers, for the most part.

What are the risks involved in starting a new business? How many of them last more than a few years?

Nationally, it is shown, approximately 450,000 of them are launched each year and 400,000 existing ones close up shop.

The Labor Department finds that the odds against a new business lasting as long as 10 years are five to one.

Despite the dire prospects, each year there is a new crop of venturesome souls who are ready to leave the security of a job and put their money and effort into pioneering a new business.

Many of them survive the hazardous early years and become successful. Others do not make it the first time but may do so on a second attempt.

Leslie County Deputy Sheriff Slain While Attempting An Arrest

A Leslie County Deputy Sheriff, Caleb Dehart, 55, of Wooton was shot to death yesterday afternoon while attempting to arrest a motorist on a reckless driving charge.

The accident happened around 6:45 p.m. 1 mile North of the Yeaddis Post Office on KY. 699.

According to Kentucky State Police, Dehart had stopped Everett Johnson, 28, of Yeaddis near the home of John Henry Adams on the charge.

Johnson reportedly had a pistol on his lap when the deputy walked up to the side of the auto.

A scuffle began over the weapon and it discharged striking Dehart in the head, killing him instantly.

Johnson was hit in the leg by a blast from the gun and was taken to the Harlan Appalachian Hospital.

State Police say the case is still under investigation by Trooper Bobby Dees.

Johnson has been charged with murder Police said.

Dehart is survived by five sons, Ellis of Leatherwood, Delmar and Merrill of Peru, Indiana, Dwight of Cutshin and Paul of Smilax and seven daughters, Mrs. Eva Lee Gilum of Leatherwood, Mrs. Anna Lee Lewis of Corbin.

School Days !!!

School Days !!!

Late summer, football games and what else?, why of course, it's back to school time.

Schools in the County System opened their doors for another fall term this morning.

A check with officials at three of the county's four high schools revealed that enrollment figures showed little change from a year ago.

M. C. Napier leads the county again enrollment wise with around 1100 students signed up for classes. This is about the same amount as last year.

Dilee Combs High School at Jeff reports that 615 are enrolled there, slightly above last year's figure.

About 150 students signed up for classes at Leatherwood High School, about the same amount as a year ago.

Officials at Buckhorn could not be reached for comment on their enrollment.

Legal Showdown Looms At Strip Mine Hearings

In separate meetings Friday night, opposing forces in the strip mine controversy laid their plans for a showdown in Frankfort next Wednesday.

The scene of the "battle" will be the State Health Department Auditorium, where public hearings on proposed new regulations governing strip mining will be aired, starting at 10 a. m.

Both sides seem to be considering the same tactics at their meetings: arranging impressive shows of strength in numbers at the hearings.

Harold Sigmon, an official of Tar Heel Coals, Inc., a surface mining company, told an estimated crowd of 400 that some 100 truck drivers are planning to drive their big tandems to Frankfort to demonstrate their opposition to the new regulations that, Sigmon said, "are designed to run us out of Eastern Kentucky."

The pro-strip mine rally featured short speeches by several men who earn their living directly or indirectly from the stripping industry, and a statement by attorney Joe Craft.

Standing in the back of a truck and speaking over a microphone to the crowd gathered in a Hazard parking lot, Craft said the strip mine industry last year brought $11 million in payrolls to the Hazard fields, and over $22 million in mine services and supply.

He said that the new regulations, drawn up a few weeks ago by J. O. Matlick's Department of Natural Resources, threatened to destroy that income to the region.

Craft urged men who earn their livings from strip mining to join the motorcade to Frankfort to make known their opposition to the new regulations.

The cars and trucks are scheduled to leave Hazard at 5 a. m. Wednesday.

As Craft spoke for strip mining, The Appalachian Group To Save Land And People was roundly denouncing it in a meeting at Cordia High School on Lotts Creek.

That meeting ended with an appeal by Chairman Leroy Martin for a large turn-out of persons opposed to strip mining at the Frankfort hearings, which will be the group's second such trip this summer.

The first one was in June, when over 100 men, women and children journeyed to the capitol to express their grievances to Governor Breathitt.

The Governor responded with a surprise inspection of Eastern and Western Kentucky strip-mined areas, after which he instructed Commissioner Matlick to draw up the proposed new regulations and schedule the public hearings.

Gene Ann Carter Takes Top Honors At EKLGA Meet In P'ville

Hazard's Gene Ann Carter captured the championship of the East Kentucky Ladies Golf Association last weekend on the rolling course of the Pikeville's Green Meadow Country Club.

The youthful golfer, 20 years old and a senior at the University of Kentucky, upset the defending champion Mary Minix of Paintsville, to take top honors among 44 contenders entered in the meet.

Carter trailed Minix by one stroke, 88-87, after Friday's 18 hole firing but overcame the lead to win the silver trophy with low gross 170 on 36 holes of play. Second place on low net honors went to Pet Wilson of the host club while Minix garnered the low putts prize among 13 golfers in the championship flight.

The local club was well represented in the championship flight by its golfers, Carter, Jonnie Jane Shackelford, Edith Napier, Alice Combs and Rhema Mitchell.

The team cup goes to the club with the lowest combined score of any three players in the meet. A determined threesome from Jenkins, Elsie Johnson, Flora Williams and Claudia Anderson tied Hazard for the net team cup so neither club won it.

In first flight competition, Paintsville carried home all the prizes: low gross, Virginia Taylor, low net, Della Holbrook, low putts, Angie Sammons. Hazard players in this flight were Jean McIntosh, Nathalia Rutledge, and Geneva Mansfield.

Second flight winners: low, May Doty of Pikeville; net Lynn Walters, Pikeville; putts, Juanita Sheegog of Hazard. Among the also rans in this flight was Louise Hatmaker.

Third flight winners: low

Mother Of Good Counsel To Hold Kindergarten

Registration for new students at the Mother of Good Counsel School on Cedar Street will be held Tuesday, August 24 and school begins Thursday, September 2.

Perry Rescue Squad To Host Others

The Perry County Rescue Squad will host all Squads of the Southeastern Kentucky Association of Rescue Squads in a joint Training Operation at Buckhorn Lake on Saturday and Sunday, September 18th and 19th.

Squads participating are Perry County, Harlan County, Pikeville, Prestonsburg, Breathitt, Corbin, Middlesboro, Somerset and Lexington.

Saturday, September 18th, the Squads will go into Blount near the Dam where rescue equipment will be on display to the general public. On Sunday, September 19th a joint Training Water Recovery operation will take place in the lake. The public will be able to view this operation from the Dam overlook. The Captains of the Squads will place a dummy in the water and anchor it to the lake bottom. The Captains will then observe their Squads in action.

This will be the largest rescue training operation ever undertaken in Southeastern Kentucky. Perry County will be the scene of many Association Training Operations since this county is the central location of the Association.

The Perry County Rescue Squad, in case of an emergency, can call on the Association for the additional manpower. Five hundred men, fully trained and equipped could be put in the mountains in two hours time to conduct a search for a lost person. In times of floods the Association Squads not directly affected by flood waters could be called on to assist Squads in the flood area.
